TREND GROWING TOWARD G.O.P. IN SENATE FIGHTS

Usually Close States Reported as Rallying Against Wilsonism.

WOMEN A BIG FACTOR

Republicans Hope to Gain 7 Seats, Including Kentucky and Maryland.

ILLINOIS IS IN DANGER

Lenroot Looks Safe in Wisconsin and Spencer Runs Well in Missouri.

Special to THE SUN and NEW YORK HERALD. WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Within the last few days reports have been received by political managers in Washington from States where close Senatorial contests are being waged giving for the first time what is regarded as a fairly accurate indication of the political complexion of the Senate in the next Congress. These reports are especially encouraging to the Republican managers, who a few weeks ago were worried about the Senate, in spite of their confidence in the success of the Presidential ticket.

Until recently the Democrats seemed to have some ground for their hope that they might be able to overturn the slim Republican majority of two in the Senate, because of the factional differences over purely local questions in several close States and the uncertainty as to which way the new women voters would go on the paramount issue of the campaign—the Wilson League of Nations.

But it now appears that except in one or two instances these differences have been ironed out, and at the same time the women have shown in the several close States and the uncertainty as to which way the new women voters would go on the paramount issue of the campaign—the Wilson League of Nations.

Not only are the Republicans now less apprehensive of losing any of their forty seats in the Senate, but they believe they have a splendid chance to increase their majority. For instance, they are turning their attention to Maryland and Oklahoma, two States which were not seriously taken into their calculations of the Senate situation several weeks ago, but which now hold out possibilities of Republican Senatorial gains.

A further illustration of the increasing confidence of the Republican managers they are getting under way a vigorous campaign against Senator Overman of North Carolina on the admittedly remote chance of picking up a Republican Senator in that Southern State.

Trend Toward Republicans.
While bending their principal efforts to elect Senator Harding and Gov. Coolidge on the Presidential ticket, the Republican managers are not losing sight of a number of the fact that it is the Senate that must decide the question of the country's future relations with the war torn world, whether the United States shall remain true to its traditional policy of absolute independence of action, or enter the Wilson League of Nations. While it would be too much to say that the Senate is not in doubt, the trend noticeable within the last two weeks is toward the Republicans.

Upon the league issue alone the Wilson Democrats are finding themselves in a worse hole than ever. Senator Hoke Smith, a lukewarm or halfway opponent of the Wilson league, was defeated in the Georgia primaries, which are equivalent to an election, by Tom Watson, a bitter and opponent of the league. So that it appears that the league advocates cannot find much comfort even in the Democratic outlook.

Of the thirty-four Senatorial elections to be held this autumn eleven are in States now represented by Republicans and nineteen in States now represented by Democrats. Only one-third of the Senate or thirty-two members are regularly elected every two years, but on this occasion there are two vacancies to be filled for the long term, or six years, caused by the death of Senator Bankhead of Alabama and Senator Martin of Virginia.

The Republicans have good chances to gain Senators in Kentucky, Nevada, South Dakota, Idaho, California, Maryland and Colorado, as things look now, and they may make a gain of one each in Oregon and Oklahoma if there should be a Republican landslide for the Presidential ticket. In Florida, Louisiana, Arkansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Arizona and Alabama (two Senators) the election of Democrats is conceded, with the possible exception of North Carolina, as explained above. That is to say the Republicans have hope in nine States.

Democrats Not Discouraged.
To offset this situation the Democrats are encouraged by Republican factional troubles to hope for gains of one each in North Dakota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Utah and Missouri—five States—while they are making claims of further Senatorial gains in Indiana, Ohio, Connecticut and New York—four more.

There is conceded to be no real chance for Democratic gains in Iowa, Kansas, Washington, Pennsylvania, Vermont and New Hampshire. The Democrats thought they had a chance to defeat Senator Moses (N. H.) on account of his bitter fight on the league and his opposition to woman suffrage, but they have lost this hope since the big victory of Senator Moses in the recent primaries.

Although vigorous Senatorial campaigns are being fought in fully twenty States, both sides admit that the complexion of the Senate after March 4, 1921, will be decided probably in about twelve States. (Only two States east of the Mississippi River hold out hopes of Republican gains—Maryland and Kentucky. Senator John W. Walter Smith, Democrat, is a candidate for reelection in Maryland, but internal Democratic strife promises a close race between him and O. E. Walker, Republican, formerly State Attorney-General. Kentucky has a Republican Governor for the first time in many years, and the Republicans have strong hopes of electing Richard P. Bennett of Covington, who is running against Senator Beckham, Democrat, George Morrow and "Phoebe" Best, victors in the Republican National Committee, have taken their coats off and are doing their level best to win next home State for the Republican ticket. Both sides admit that it is a close race.)

In South Dakota Gov. Norbeck, Republican, is opposing U. S. G. Cherry, Democrat, and is a very strong candidate. Were it not for the fact that there are two independent candidates in the field, one on the Non-Partisan League ticket, Gov. Norbeck's election to the Senate would seem to be a certainty. In North Dakota the complexion of the Non-Partisan League, which defeated Senator Gronna for the Republican nomination, putting E. F. Ladd, a college professor and farmer, on the combined ticket, gives the Democrats a splendid chance for a gain, for it is expected that a good many old line Republicans will support the Democratic nominee, H. H. Terry, rather than Ladd.

Lenroot's Chances Improve.
Senator Lenroot has won the Republican nomination in Wisconsin over the bitter opposition of Senator La Follette, who the Democrats think they have a chance to profit by the Lenroot-La Follette squabble and elect Paul B. Reinecke, former Ambassador to China, but the latest information is that Senator Lenroot is getting the best of it.

The acrimonious battle between Gov. Lowden of Illinois and Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago for control of the State has put Illinois in the doubtful column. The contest between Representative Frank B. Smith, who is the Thompson candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination, and Representative William B. McKinley, supported by Lowden, probably will not be decided until certain sealed ballot boxes are opened this week. The Republicans will have to get busy "making up" in order to prevent the loss of a Senate seat here to the Democrats.

The Democrats have a good fighting ground in Missouri, where former Assistant Secretary of State Breckenridge Long is running on the Democratic ticket against Senator Spencer, Republican. The State is always close. Scandal in the Republican camp in connection with the pre-convention campaign of Gov. Lowden of Illinois for the Republican Presidential nomination has disturbed the situation, but on the other hand the Democrats are in a turmoil because of the bitter opposition of Senator Reed, Democrat, colleague of Senator Spencer, to the Wilson Administration, and particularly the League of Nations.

Idaho, home of Senator Borah, leader of the anti-league forces in the Senate, is torn wide open over a contest between Gov. Tasker Oddie, Republican, who is running on an anti-league ticket, and the Democrats, who are bending every effort to make a gain there, as they also are in Nevada, where the present incumbent, Senator Henderson, is being opposed by former Gov. Taylor Oddie, Republican, and the National Women's Party is supporting Anne Martin.

Anti-Wilson Revolt in Colorado.
There is a widespread revolt against the Administration in Colorado. Senator Thomas, the present incumbent, is a strong opponent of the league and is expected to stand for renomination on the Democratic ticket. Karl C. Schuyler of Denver, Representative John W. Harrell in the Republican candidate for the Senate in Colorado. He has a better chance to win than any Republican has had in recent years in that State because of the intense feeling engendered in the Democratic ranks when Senator Gore was defeated for renomination on the Democratic ticket by Representative Scott Ferris.

Senator Reed Smoot of Utah is having the fight of his political life to keep his seat on the Republican side of the Senate. The radical element in the State is after his scalp and the Democrats think they have a good opportunity to elect their man, Representative Frank Welling. The personal popularity of Senator Chamberlain of Oregon makes it hard for the Republicans to gain a seat there, but they are making a hard fight in behalf of their candidate, Robert Stansfield.

The Republicans are practically certain to gain a Senator in California. Every county in the State has many more registered Republican voters than Democrats. Senator Thelin, Democrat, who is running for reelection, only won in 1914 in a three-cornered fight and received but a little more than one-third of the total vote. The Republican candidate is Samuel Shortridge, who is regarded as a reactionary and may lose some liberal Republican votes on that account.

Big Battles in Three States.
New York, Ohio and Indiana are, as usual, the scenes of big Senatorial battles this year. It is practically conceded, however, that whichever party elects its Presidential ticket this year also will win the Senatorial contests in these States. Former Gov. Frank Willis, a pronounced "dry," is the Republican candidate in Ohio against William Alexander Julian, Democrat, a "wet," and at the present writing the trend is toward Willis. Former Senator Tom Taggart is running on the Democratic ticket in Indiana against Senator Watson, Republican. It is expected that Taggart will make a fine showing, running ahead of the national Democratic ticket but the latest trends indicate the election of Senator Watson.

In New York the Senatorial race is between Senator Wadsworth, Republican, and Lieut.-Gov. Harry Walker, Democrat. The former's opposition to woman suffrage may hurt him, although there has been no indication to date that the women are letting the interwoven with their judgment of candidates, now they have won the ballot. It is doubtful whether Tammany can make a good enough showing this year to overcome the normal up-State majority for Wadsworth. An interesting phase of this contest is the candidacy of Dr. Ella A. Hoole on the Prohibition ticket.

Senator Brandegee, Republican, has a fight on his hands for re-election in Connecticut, but the situation is brightening to look brighter there for the Republican.

WOMAN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.
Mrs. Mary Morgan was shot in the right breast yesterday and is in the Knickerbocker Hospital in a critical condition. The police were told by her husband, Frederick Morgan, a member of the Police Reserve, that the woman was showing one of his revolvers to friends at the Morgan apartment, 519 West 134th street, when it was discharged accidentally.

REPUBLICANS BEGIN DRIVE NEXT WEEK

Whirlwind Speaking Campaign Will Be Conducted in Every County in State.

CANDIDATES ARE ACTIVE

Miller and Wadsworth to Talk in Every Section—Depew to Take Stump.

The Republican State Committee announced yesterday that the speaking campaign in behalf of the Republican State ticket will begin a week from tonight and will be carried in whirlwind fashion into every county. The speakers' bureau will be under the direction of Addison B. Parker of Watertown, who was chairman of the primary campaign committee of the candidates who were named at the Republican primaries last week.

Mr. Parker conferred yesterday with George A. Glynn, chairman of the Republican State Committee, and Herbert H. Snell, chairman of the State executive committee, after which announcement of the campaign plans were made. They will enter on local county arrangements with the county chairmen in Syracuse next Wednesday.

Both Nathan L. Miller, Republican candidate for Governor, and Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., who is running for reelection, expect to speak in every county. Judge Miller and Francis M. Hux, Secretary of State, will speak from the same platform and will open the campaign together.

Senator Wadsworth will speak at Albany at the Albany County Fair next Thursday. On that day Judge Miller and Secretary Hux will appear at the Potsdam club, and will address the Rotary Club of Buffalo on the afternoon of September 30.

Theodore Roosevelt will accompany Judge Miller the last two weeks of the campaign. Chauncey M. Depew, despite his eighty-four years, has announced his intention of taking part in the speaking drive.

Others who are expected to take the stump are Elton H. Hooker, who will begin his speaking tour at Watertown next Thursday; Charles S. Whitman, who will take the stump in October; Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, Thaddeus C. Sweet, Ogden L. Mills, William Hayward Theodore Douglas Robinson, Senator William H. Calkins, John Lord O'Brien and F. H. La Guardia.

The Republican committee of New York county, in cooperation with the State and national Republican speakers' bureau, is planning a great speaking drive for the city, with 500 meetings a day for October. In addition to campaign speakers of national repute, it is expected that 300 volunteer orators will be put into the field.

Preliminary organization will begin next Friday afternoon at the Republican county headquarters, 105 West Fortieth street, under the direction of Harold G. Aron, chairman of the county speakers' bureau, and F. H. Wulfin, who has directed the speakers' training school of the Young Republican Club.

BOYS ESCAPE REFORMATORY.
Three Trustees Leave, With Less Than Month to Serve.

ELMHURST, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Three trustees of the New York State Reformatory for boys, all with less than one month to serve, decided to quit early this morning.

At five A. M. the boys, Fred Moore of Rochester, Donald Dudley of Buffalo and Burton Follette of Susquehanna, Pa., were sent to do some work in the garden near the barns and got away unobserved to the hills beyond.

GOVERNOR 'FOLDED HIS TENT LIKE THE ARAB'

Maine Town Very Quiet to Democratic Spellbinder.

Special to THE SUN and NEW YORK HERALD. BANGOR, Me., Sept. 19.—One bit of evidence of the non-Democratic atmosphere in the late campaign has been reported by a visitor in a nearby town, who learned of this incident on excellent authority.

The Democratic Governor of a certain Middle Western State had been selected by the State Committee to arouse the lethargic citizens of a Penobscot county town to a repudiation of the Republican candidates, who were so actively campaigning.

Ordinarily the advent of such a talented speaker would have been heralded far about the countryside, but not so in this case. There was hay to be cut and other more urgent business in hand. The speaker arrived on an afternoon train, expecting to be met and escorted to the village inn by the Democratic powers of the community. He looked in vain for the crowd, a parade or the committee, and finally went to the only hotel unannounced and unaccompanied.

For a town supposed to be sitting in the heat of a political campaign the place was exceedingly quiet, and upon nonchalant inquiry the Governor learned to his amazement that no Democratic rally was scheduled for that evening and no one knew if the Democrats could muster a crowd anyway. Without disclosing his identity he departed as quietly as he came. The local committee later had to explain their lack of enthusiasm, but the business of farming and remaining in modest seclusion continued until the battle was over.

TENNESSEE ANTIS CALL ON COLBY TO RETRACT

Will Quote Precedents on Visit To-morrow.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A delegation of Tennessee anti-suffragists, headed by Speaker of the House Walker, arrived in Washington to-night, and, according to announcement by the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, will call on Secretary Colby to-morrow to request that the final action of the Tennessee House in voting not to concur in ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment be recognized and announced by the State Department.

The anti-suffragists declared to-night that precedent for the request is found in the action of Secretary of State Howard in conditionally proclaiming the Fourteenth Amendment and Secretary of State Fish in proclaiming the Fifteenth Amendment. In both cases, although there were enough ratifying States otherwise, the State Department announced withdrawals. Such an announcement in the case of Tennessee's ratification of the suffrage amendment is requested by the Tennessee delegation.

Delegations of anti-suffragists from other States are expected by the Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage to join with the Tennessee delegation in calling on Secretary Colby. A large delegation, it was said, will come from Maryland, where the Legislature meets in special session to-morrow.

SLEMP TO QUIT CONGRESS.

Only G. O. P. Representative from Virginia Is in Ill Health.

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 19.—C. Barcom Slemp, for many years the sole Republican member of Virginia's delegation in the House of Representatives, announced to-day in a statement to Republicans of the Ninth Virginia district that he could not be a candidate to succeed himself. He ascribed his decision to ill health and a desire to give more attention to his private business.

Representative Slemp now is serving as head of the Southern headquarters of the Republican campaign organization. He first was elected to Congress in 1907 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, and has been reelected six times.

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

The New Canoe

In earlier days the canoes of the North were built of birch-bark. They are now made of canvas with spruce ribs and frame. Notice the curve in the center of the keel. The idea is to concentrate the weight in the middle leaving the stem and stern light. This enables the canoe to ride easily over rapid water without shipping waves which might waterlog the craft or spoil the canoe.

You Men of Wall Street— Were your words empty words?

When you saw The Broad Street Hospital Thursday so pitifully handicapped by limited facilities in handling and succoring the wounded—when you saw them, lying there, even dying there, waiting for ambulances to take them to distant hospitals—

You said to yourself and to your neighbor, "Wall Street and lower New York needs, and can and should support an adequately equipped hospital; it should not rely on the charity of other sections of the city."

Were your words empty words? Some few have contributed. Are you going to permit yourself to sink back into the same unprepared, unprotected condition?

The Broad Street Hospital exists only to serve you and your employees and your neighbors. It is yours, here for your protection. Make it adequate to serve you in your moment of need. It is your only protection—make it real, make it big enough to meet your call, when you call.

Carry on, carry through your resolution.

Send your contribution now. Make it big enough to be representative of yourself, your company, your employees—and then add some for charity to others.
